

Panel Discussion

International Cooperation at the Time of Change. Sustainable Course

Cities are becoming major arenas to fight for a new ecological order. In order to solve environmental problems more effectively, megacities focus on international cooperation and exchange of experience between experts and multidisciplinary specialists, on achieving the UN Sustainable Development Goals. Every day city mayors, bloggers, scientists, entrepreneurs, activists, and citizens commit themselves to create a more sustainable urban environment. Today, Covid-19 post-crisis recovery focuses on the state of the environment, and the eradication of inequalities, the improvement of physical and social infrastructure, the quality of housing and transportation.

Moderator:

Peter Knoch, Head of the Berlin Bureau of the Spectrum Group of Companies

Speakers:

Sergey Cheremin, Head of the Moscow City Foreign Economic and International Relations Department

Angelina Davydova, Environmental Journalist, Editor of Ecology and Law, UN Climate Negotiator

Ekaterina Egorova, Founder, Moscow Circular

Piero Pelizzaro, Chief Resilience Officer, Milan